E-Mail System Messages

E-Mail System Messages

Introduction: The APN (Agent Private Network) will send messages to the email accounts of the Master Account and all Sub-Accounts when certain events occur. If you do NOT wish to receive these emails then log on to the website and click on 'Your Account' and check the 'email Off' checkbox and then click save.

Install/Reinstall messages: Every time an Agent reports in the first time on new installs or re-installs the APN will send an email notification. The reason this is done is that some stores do NOT connect the computer to the Internet prior to renting it. Therefore when the customer connects it to the Internet it will report and send you an email. This helps you ensure your agents are reporting and Agent records are being created.

If you are the Master Account with several stores this can also be a way of being notified that your store managers are loading and using the Agent.

Lockdown messages: When an Agent locks a computer the APN will send an email so that you don't have to keep checking the website. The email will also have the password that is required to unlock the computer.

The Detective messages: When The Detective is on, all information is emailed.

Messages on the website

Because email is often blocked, filtered, rejected etc, you may not get the emails from the APN. The web-site keeps copies of all messages for roughly 20 days. You can log on to the website and view all messages.

Tip: To help you identify the reason a computer is being locked, use the Note field which is available for each Agent. The Note field is always the first line in any message that is sent. For example, if John Doe is renting a
